

Robin Coleman Goldstein
1458 W Grace St #2E
Chicago, IL 60613
r-coleman3@northwestern.edu

Education

- Northwestern University September 2002-present
- Candidate for Ph.D. in Anthropology with concentration in Archaeology
February 2005
 - Master of Arts in Anthropology conferred June 2004
 - M.A. paper: Food and Society: Using ICP-AES soil analysis to understand household activities and social relations
 - Doctoral Dissertation Topic: Negotiating Power in the Wari Empire: the intersection of daily life and imperial control
 - Relevant Courses: South American Archaeology; Household Archaeology; How Economies Matter; Archaeology of Inequality; History of Archaeological Theory; Archaeological Research Design; History of Anthropological Theory
- Boston University September 2001
- Bachelor of Arts in Archaeology with a minor in Spanish
 - Magna Cum Laude; GPA: 3.93; Rabbi S. J. Abrams Merit Scholarship recipient.
 - Semester Study Abroad in Madrid
 - Relevant Courses: Archaeological Theory and Practice; Remote Sensing Technologies; Inca and Aztec Archaeology; Ancient American Writing Systems; Archaeological Statistics; 8 courses in Spanish language and literature

Honors & Grants Received

- NSF Doctoral Dissertation Improvement Grant 2005/2006
- The Field Museum of Natural History Women in Science Fellowship 2005/2006
- Committee for International and Comparative Studies Grant (NU) Summer 2004
- Latin American and Caribbean Studies Grant (NU) Summer 2004
- NSF Graduate Research Fellowship Honorable Mention Spring 2004
- Northwestern University Friends of Anthropology Grant Summer 2003
- NSF Graduate Research Fellowship Honorable Mention Spring 2003
- Committee for Cultural Collections Grant (The Field Museum) Summer 2002

Relevant Activities

- Proyecto Unidades Domésticos de Chuquibamba, Arequipa 2005- 2006
Chuquibamba, Perú
Project Co-Director: Directed my dissertation fieldwork, involving site mapping, surface collections, excavations, and artifact analyses at Wari sites in the Southern Andes.
- Proyecto Arqueológico Cerro Baúl Summer 2001 to 2004
Museo Contisuyo, Moquegua, Perú
Unit Supervisor: Oversaw four workmen during two eight-week excavation seasons at a Wari site in the Southern Andes. Excavated multiple rooms of both elite and non-elite residential structures, as well as prepared millimeter maps, sketches, field forms, and unit reports of each strata and feature for the Instituto Nacional de Cultura.

Ethnographer: Interviewed local families in Spanish about traditional food preparation and consumption and collected modern soil samples from distinct domestic activity areas for later ICP-AES processing.

Lab Assistant and Photographer: Also assisted with ceramic, faunal, botanic, and lithic analysis. Photographed archaeological collections of the 2001, 2002, and 2004 seasons.

Northwestern University 2003/2004, 2004/2005, 2006/2007
Evanston, Illinois

Teaching Assistant: Assisted professors in Geography, Archaeology, Cultural Anthropology, and Biological Anthropology courses, leading discussion sections, as well as writing and grading exams.

The Field Museum of Natural History Fall 2004
Chicago, Illinois

Instructor: Designed and taught People of the Andes, a four-week survey course on the prehistory of the Andes with a focus on the Inka.

Guest Scientist: Selected objects from the museum's South American collections, prepared a visual display, and spoke with visitors about South American archaeology during a 3 hour session.

Chicago Archaeological Society Fall 2004
Evanston, Illinois

Guest Speaker: Presented lecture Roots of Andean Peoples.

The Field Museum of Natural History Summer, Spring 2004
Chicago, Illinois

Proyecto Arqueológico Cerro Baúl Website Intern: Supplied text descriptions and photographs for the Field Museum's Expeditions website; translated website in to Spanish.

Joseph Hopkins, Associates Fall 2001
Baltimore, MD

Excavator: tested a potential site in southern Maryland in a Phase I survey for a cultural resource management firm.

Arthur Frommer's Budget Travel Magazine Online Spring 2001
New York, NY

Editorial Intern: Researched, fact-checked, and wrote over 15 articles for the magazine's website on various budget travel opportunities. Worked with Executive Editor Pauline Frommer to generate and develop new website features.

Core Journal Editorial Board Spring 1999
Boston University

Read, critiqued, proofread and selected submissions of creative and analytical essays by Boston University students.

The Daily Free Press Spring 1998
The independent student newspaper at Boston University

Wrote for the weekly science news section; did background research for articles, which involved archival research as well as phone and personal interviews with key individuals.

Blue Creek Archaeological Field School

Summer 1997, 1996

St. Mary's University, Belize

Excavator: learned the fundamental archaeological techniques of excavating, mapping, and cataloguing at a Maya site in Northern Belize.

Publications and Papers

In press Reconstructing Middle Horizon (500-1000 C.E.¹) Social Dynamics through Paleoethnobotanical Interpretations of Fermented Beverage Production and Consumption at Cerro Baúl, Moquegua, Perú. Co-authors D.J. Goldstein and P.R. Williams. In Drink and Power in the Andes. Eds. J. Jennings and B. Bowser. Gainesville: University of Florida Press.

In press Grinding Stones, Hearths, and Households: Rethinking the Domestic Economy in the Andes. In Archaeological Papers of the American Anthropological Association.

n.d. Domestic Space and Social Dynamics: An Activity Area Analysis Using ICP-AES. Unpublished manuscript, submitted to Latin American Antiquity.

2005 Grinding Stones, Hearths, and Households: Rethinking the Domestic Economy in the Andes. Presented at the Annual American Anthropological Association Meetings, Nov. 30 - Dec. 4, Washington, D.C.

2004 Schinus Molle L. (Anacardiaceae) Chicha Production in the Central Andes. In Economic Botany 58(4). Co-author David J. Goldstein.

2004 Mil Quinientos Años de la Producción de la Chicha de Schinus molle en el Sur del Perú. Presented at the Congreso Internacional sobre la Cerveza en la Prehistoria y Antigüedad, October 3-5, Universitat de Barcelona, Barcelona, Spain. Co-author David J. Goldstein.

2004 Food and Society: Using ICP-AES soil analysis to understand household activities and social relations. Presented at the 69th Annual Society for American Archaeology Meetings, April 1-5, Montreal, Canada.

2004 Excavación de la Unidad 25; Excavación de la Unidad 31. In Informe de Campo y Informe Final: Proyecto Arqueológico Cerro Baúl 2002. Edited by Patrick R. Williams and Mario Ruales, Museo Contisuyo and The Field Museum of Chicago.

2002 Excavación de la Unidad 9. In Informe de Campo y Informe Final: Proyecto Arqueológico Cerro Baúl 2001. Edited by Patrick R. Williams and Mario Ruales M., pp.14-17, 18-20, 22-23 Museo Contisuyo and The Field Museum of Chicago.

Professional Memberships

Society for American Archaeology
American Anthropological Association

2002 to present
2005 to present

Languages

English and Spanish: Fluent reading, writing, and speaking.

Relevant Skills

- Remote Sensing Technology (GPR, resistivity, magnetometer, aerial photography)
- Proficient in SPSS; ArcGIS, ESRI (GIS software)
- Photography, Dark Room Experience
- Microsoft Office, Adobe Illustrator, Adobe Photoshop
- Proficient in Internet software (Netscape, Internet Explorer, telnet)
- Typing skills: 60-70 words per minute